POLITEHNICA University of Bucharest (PUB), founded in 1886, is now the largest technical university of Romania, with about 23000 students, 3300 full time staff, 1800 part-time faculty and 900 postgraduate students.

The Center for Advanced Technologies (CTANM) is a research and training unit with financial and functional autonomy inside PUB, established in 1996, acting for defining and implementing both b-Learning current internal procedures and university's LLL far-future development strategy.

The CTANM's funding is mainly realised through research and training contracts, with Romanian or foreign beneficiaries, by national, European or international projects.
