The Bremer Ausbildungspartnerschaft (BAP) was founded 1988 by the University of Bremen as a UETP (University-Enterprise Training Partnership) within the framework of the EC-Programme COMETT.

BAP initiates and coordinates joint-European collaboration-projects between universities and enterprises in the sphere of technology oriented training and further education, as well as the international transfer of personnel and students placement exchange.

BAP provides trans-european support for:

- The analysis of continuing training requirement in enterprises.
- Information on opportunities for continuing training and the application of new media.
- Mediation of trainers and specialists from the realms of science and the economy.
- Information on EC-Programmes.
- Support of applications.
- Conception and organization of projects.
- Procurement and organization of practice-oriented student placement exchange and personal transfer (LLP Erasmus/Leonardo da Vinci).
